HISTORY

Ohio: the birthplace of 4-H.

4-H began in Clark County, Ohio. On January 15, 1902, Mr. Albert Belmont Graham, the superintendent of the Springfield Township Schools at that time, organized a meeting with some thirty boys and girls in the county courthouse basement. The intent behind the meeting was to learn more about harvesting corn, planting a garden, testing soil samples, tying knots in rope and identifying natural wildlife such as weeds and insects. Eventually, the group came to be called the "Boy's and Girl's Agricultural Club" with their research continuing well into 1903. Prizes were given to recognize the efforts of all the members in executing projects based upon the previously mentioned areas.

Given the success of Graham's "out-of-school education program," the Ohio State University created a plan to aid in the club's research through the use of the Agricultural Experiment Station and the College of Agriculture. In time, the Ohio State University's influence helped to establish additional youth agricultural clubs throughout Ohio. By 1905, there were over 2,000 youth within sixteen counties partaking in similar programs to that of the "original" Agricultural Club. Proving extremely successful in his practices, Graham accepted the position as Superintendent of Extension for Ohio. Once in office, Graham set the following concepts, which form the basis for the Ohio Cooperative Extension Service:

- To elevate the standard of living in Ohio
- To emphasize the importance of hard work and habits of industry which are essential to building a strong character.
- To acquaint boys and girls with their environment and to interest them in making their own investigations;
- To give the boys who shall become interested in farm work an elementary knowledge of agriculture and farm practices and to give girls the essential facts of domestic economy;
- To educate adults in the elementary science of agriculture and in the most-up-to-date farm practices;
- To cultivate a taste for the beautiful in nature;
- To inspire young men and women to further their education in the science of agriculture or domestic science.

Becoming an 'ambassador' for agriculture through Extension, Graham sought "to raise the standard of rural life. He stressed the dignity of hard work and sound character, and he taught that agriculture could be improved by applying the ideas of science." In 1916, fourteen years after the first courthouse meeting, the Ohio 4-H organization officially began with the establishment of the Department of Boy's and Girl's Club Work.

With the roots for 4-H deeply rooted within Ohio, the 4-H program has since spread to all fifty U.S. States and internationally to more than eighty countries around the world. However, Ohio is proud of its early 4-H heritage and of the fact that the Ohio programs are one of the largest in existence today. 4-H is no longer only for members of the farming community, but extends into the suburbs and inner cities all over America. Membership is open to all youth between the ages of five and nineteen. Members are welcome, regardless of cultural, economic and social backgrounds. Therefore, even with the many changes in society today, Graham's basic aim for 4-H remains the same: "The development of youth as individuals and as responsible, productive members of the community in which they live."

4-H Youth Participants are defined as any youth taking part in programs provided as a result of action by extension personnel (professional, Paraprofessional, And volunteer). This includes youth participating in programs conducted through 1862, 1890, and 1994 land-grant universities, EFNEP, urban gardening, and other programs that may not actually use the 4-H name and emblem with participants.

A 4-H Club is defined as an organized group of youth, led by an adult, with a planned program that is carried on throughout all or most of the year. 4-H clubs may meet in any location and typically have elected officers and a set of rules approved by the membership to govern the club, or for very young groups, other developmentally appropriate structures and operating processes. Includes the following:

- Community clubs typically meet in the evenings or on weekends and offer self-chosen multiple learning experiences and activities.
- In-school clubs meet during school hours, but have officers and planned activities beyond school enrichment.
- 4-H after-school clubs are organized within after-school programs administered by Cooperative Extension staff or other organizations (i.e. other youth development organizations, housing authorities, faith-based groups.) They set the above definition of a 4-H Club and the young people and adult staff identify themselves as 4-H members and volunteers. They may have officers and elements of a club structure.
- Military 4-H clubs are organized by the Armed Forces, often on military installations, and principally for military dependents.

Special Interest/Short-term Programs Groups of youth meeting for a specific learning experience that involves direct teaching by extension staff or trained volunteers, including teachers. Program is not part of school curriculum and not restricted to members of 4-H clubs.

Overnight Camping Programs involve youth taking part in an Extension-planned educational experience of group living in the out-of-doors. Overnight camping includes being away from home at least one night (resident, primitive, or travel camping) and is not restricted to members of organized 4-H clubs.

Day Camping Programs involve youth taking part in an Extension-planned educational experience of group living in the out-of-doors. Day camping consists of multiple-day programs, with youth returning home each evening.

School Enrichment Programs involve groups of youth receiving a sequence of learning experiences in cooperation with school officials during school hours to support the school curriculum. Involves direct teaching by extension staff or trained volunteers, including teachers.

Individual Study/Mentoring/Family Learning Programs are planned learning that occurs independently of a formal group setting, such as a club, as an individual, paired, or family learning effort. Self directed, usually with limited adult involvement except for parents (or mentor). Examples include self-study, international host families, advanced placement courses, mentoring or shadowing with an "expert," whole families learning together.

After-School Educational Programs offered to youth outside of school hours, usually in a school or other community center. The after-school program must be supported by Extension by training the after-school staff, infusing 4-H curricula into the program, and/or other significant support such as conducting needs assessments, evaluations, and/or resource development. The primary purpose of the program is to provide care, developmental and educational experiences for children and youth while parents are working or unavailable. As general guidance, facilities or settings should operate approximately 3 days per week and two hours per day (e.g. six hours per week) for about five months of the academic year or three days per week for six hours per day (e.g. 18 hours per week) and/or for at least eight weeks in the summer. The children and youth in these programs should be enrolled as 4-H members in the county program, have the benefits of all 4-H programs and activities, and identify themselves as 4-H members.

Instructional TV/Video/ Web Programs are youth offered learning experiences through Extension via broadcast or closed circuit television, including satellite transmission, or videotape replays of such series. May also include instruction delivered by Internet.
